BACHELOR OF ARTS IN SOCIOLOGY AND ANTHROPOLOGY

ABOUT THE PROGRAM

FIU’s online BA in Sociology/Anthropology offers a sociology track, which is the scientific study of social life. Sociologists confront real world problems that impact social life, such as urban blight, gentrification, growth of mobile technologies and corporate downsizing. Through this fully online degree, students learn from world-class research faculty, study a range of contemporary social issues, and develop strong research and analytical skills, including social survey techniques, social statistical sampling methods, social data analysis and computer-based mapping of social phenomena. For students who want to help shape positive social change and gain a global perspective, this bachelor’s degree will provide valuable career skills in diversity and insight into social issues and institutions.
